

John Lowery to Lead Local IT Firm, SCIT

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Greenwood, South Carolina

###

John Lowery, formerly Director of Marketing and Special programs for the Partnership Alliance, has accepted the position of CEO of SCIT. SCIT, based in Greenwood, provides organizations in the Lakelands and Charleston with full-service IT support, and is the largest single-source IT supplier to business in this area.

“For the past year or two I have been searching for an individual capable of taking the helm and assist me in developing and managing the growth that SimplePC, SCTEL, and SCIT since have enjoyed since 1997. John’s thirty years of management and marketing experience and his local contacts made him the ideal candidate,” said James Kennemore, who owns the three companies.

“This is a great opportunity for me,” Lowery added, “I enjoy helping small companies grow and SCIT’s complete approach to offering IT services means it will continue to grow fast!”

Lowery moved to Greenwood from Los Angeles five years ago when he and his wife Missy, bought the Stony Point plantation home, built by Missy’s family in 1818.

SCIT is part of the Kennemore Holdings family of companies that also includes SCTEL, a provider of high-speed internet DSL and telecommunications service and SimplePC, a computer sales and repair business.

SCIT is unique in its approach to supporting businesses’ technology needs through its ProvidenceMTS service which provides clients with a flat-rate and proactive alternative to the usual and unpredictable response and cost of computer service.

Locally, SCIT’s clients include Greenwood County government, Abbeville County government, Anderson Metals, and the Grand Harbor Group. You can reach SCIT at (864) 223-3344 or www.scit.com.
